AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

When suffering daily torture from backache, rheumatic pain, Any ill of kidneys or bladder, Turn to Doan's Kidney Pills. A cure endorsed by thousands. Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift any thing, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McBurn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Roger Harrison Drowned.

A sad drowning accident occurred last Friday evening on Lake Thompson, near East Oxford, where Roger Harrison, 61 Portland, one of the crew of painters who are employed in painting the summer residence of Mrs. Dr. G. T. Elliot, situated on the shore of Lake Thompson, lost his life by drowning.

As near as the facts can be learned, Mr. Harrison with Arthur McDonald, a companion workman were out on the lake rowing in the early evening. In the darkness of heavy showers the boat was overturned. The cries for help were heard by those at the house situated near the shore, who hastened with a boat to the rescue. By the flashes of lightning in the darkness they discerned the overturned boat with Mr. McDonald clinging to it, whom they rescued in a nearly exhausted condition.

When they reached the house Mr. McDonald was unconscious. A physician from Oxford was quickly summoned by telephone. After persistent efforts he was restored to consciousness. All efforts to find Mr. Harrison were fruitless. His last words to McDonald was for him to cling to the boat and he would swim ashore, which he failed to do.

Help was summoned from Oxford and Otisfield which was readily responded to with twenty boats and grapples, dragging the lake in the vicinity of the accident all Saturday and Sunday, but had failed to find the body Sunday night.

The question of employing a diver to find the body was discussed and a subscription paper circulated among the crowd gathered by the lake. J. B. Robinson of Oxford headed the paper with ten dollars, and in a short time over one hundred dollars was pledged for the object, and arrangements made to carry out the plan.

Mr. Harrison was about fifty years old. He leaves a widow and four children. The body was found Wednesday night, and sent to Portland this morning.

Died in Richmond, June 22nd, Mary J., wife of the late Hiram Henderson. Mrs. Henderson was a native of this place and the daughter of the late James and Pamela Wright. Her remains were brought to this place Monday and placed in the family cemetery by the side of her husband.

On Sunday afternoon as Jack Bowser, wife and son were descending what is known as Greeley Hill, near the Oxford line, the harness gave way letting the wagon onto the rocks, he fell, frightening the horse so he ran throwing out the occupants of the wagon. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser were badly bruised and the little boy's shoulder broken.

The convention was under the supervision of the school board with C. C. Martin as chairman, and our efficient supervisor of schools, Mrs. M. C. Kemp. Some were disappointed in not having State Superintendent Stearns expected, but E. H. Pratt, principal of Oxford High school, very ably filled the vacancy. Mr. Pratt's talk and suggestions on the different subjects discussed was very interesting, and attentively listened to by a large audience composed of our local teachers, and citizens of our town, many of which took part in the exercises, consisting of reading, essays and discussions interspersed with music. Mr. Pratt came accompanied by Oxford High School band, organized by himself, which have won to themselves much praise on several occasions before, and added new laurels to their reputation on this occasion.

Buildings Burned.

The buildings of Adelbert Stanley were burned last Thursday afternoon. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and his father, Chas. Stanley.

Both men were away at the time, Adelbert at work below in the farm and Chas. traveling for the ADVERTISER.

Mrs. Stanley had finished her work and started to call on a neighbor. When opposite the cemetery she met Mr. and Mrs. Sidney McAllister. Mrs. McAllister went with her calling while her husband went to the village.

Mr. McAllister soon noticed smoke coming through Stanley's roof. He called out, drove to the house and burst in. The fire had made such headway that he could not get up stairs. A crowd soon gathered and the larger part of the furniture down stairs was saved.

Seth Hutchins went after Adelbert and when he got home the house was nearly gone and the barn on fire. Every thing was saved in the barn.

Chas. Stanley came home that night, it was a sad home coming for him. He had lived there 30 years or more. They are staying at Eugene Stanley's at present and are undecided what they will do. The buildings, furniture, etc., were insured in the Lovell company for $550 which will not nearly cover the loss.

The Story of Father John's

A Story Everyone Should Read, True and Full of Human Interest.

Half a century ago, Rev. Father John O'Brien of St. Patrick's Parish Lowell, Mass., through overwork and exposure, became seriously run down. A cold and stubborn cough and lung trouble threatened his life. An eminent specialist gave Father John, as he was fondly called, a prescription to cure the cold and remove the lung trouble as well as to build up and strengthen the body.

The clergyman began to improve at once, the cough disappeared and his lungs healed. It corrected his digestion, made new tissue and Father John was soon restored to his former health and strength.

Father John recommended the medicine to his parishioners and friends, and because of its merits it became the family remedy in thousands of homes, and became known as "Father John's Medicine," having been so named by the people, and was advertised, all with the approval of Father John.

It taken faithfully it will cure all throat and lung troubles, prevent Pneumonia and Consumption, and make flesh and strength.

NOTE:—Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine and does not contain alcohol or poisonous drugs. Read guarantee which follows:

The Story of Father John's

A Story Everyone Should Read,
True and Full of Human Interest.

Half a century ago, Rev. Father John O'Brien of St. Patrick's Parish, Lewiston, Mass., through overwork and exposure, became seriously run down. A cold and stubborn cough and lung trouble threatened his life. An eminent specialist gave Father John, as he was fondly called, a prescription to cure the cold and remove the lung trouble as well as to build up and strengthen the body. The clergyman began to improve at once, the cough disappeared and his lungs healed. It corrected his digestion, made new tissue and Father John was soon restored to his former health and strength.

Father John recommended the medicine to his parishioners and friends, and because of its merits it became the family remedy in thousands of homes, and became known as "Father John's Medicine," having been so named by the people, and was advertised, all with the approval of Father John.

If taken faithfully it will cure all throat and lung troubles, prevent Pneumonia and Consumption, and make flesh and strength. NOTE—Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine and does not contain alcohol or poisonous drugs. Read guarantee which follows:

$25,000 GUARANTEE.

As a guarantee that the story of Father John's Medicine is absolutely true, the sum of $25,000 will be given to any charitable institution if it can be shown otherwise. Also it is further guaranteed that if Father John's Medicine does not do all that we claim for it, your money will be refunded.

Buildings Burned.
The buildings of Adelbert Stanley were burned last Thursday afternoon. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and his father, Chas. Stanley. Both men were away at the time, Adelbert at work below Lovell on a farm and Chas. traveling for the ADVERTISER.

Mrs. Stanley had finished her work and started to call on a neighbor. When opposite the cemetery she met Mr. and Mrs. Sidney McAllister. Mrs. McAllister went with her calling while her husband went to the mill.

Mr. McAllister soon noticed smoke coming through Stanley's ell roof. He called out, drove to the house and burst the door, but the fire had made such headway that he could not get up stairs. A crowd soon gathered and the larger part of the furniture down stairs was saved.

Seth Hutchings went after Adelbert and when he got home the house was nearly gone and the barn on fire. Every thing was saved in the barn.

Chas. Stanley came home that night. It was a sad home coming for him. He had lived there 30 years or more. They are stopping at Eugene Stanley's at present and are undecided what they will do. The buildings, furniture, etc., were insured in the Lovell company for $550 which will not nearly cover the loss.

The genial driver of the Harrison stage, Frank Eastman, met with a misfortune the past week just as he was starting on his return trip. In crossing the car track near printing-house square the right hind wheel, like the deacon's famous one-horse shay, went all to smash. Frank and his passengers jumped out, and they did not stand on the order of their going. He had plenty of help getting his load unloaded and was on his way to Harrison. There was not a spoke left in that wheel. Charles Johnson cleared the debris from the street, and in due time the wagon was taken to the repair shop.

Masons Visit Lake Thompson.

St. John's day was observed by Oxford Lodge, F. and A. M., by a picnic at the cottage of Dr. H. R. Farris on the shore of Thompson Lake, Oxford, Friday afternoon. There were about one hundred present, about fifty going from some time. The cottage is very pleasantly located, a grove is near at hand and boats were furnished for those desiring them. Beans and coffee were furnished at the cottage and pastry and other food was carried by the guests. An extra good time was enjoyed by all.

Flags floated in the breeze. Ham-mocks and swings had been placed in the grove. Ladies chatted on the spacious verandas. There was a game of base ball between the Oxford and Norway masons, and several contests at quails. Row boats were at the disposal of the guests and the four motor boats of Joseph Jacques, Walter Deane, A. N. Record and George Hazen.

The Norway party included Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Bartlett, Dr. and Mrs. F. N. Barker, Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Bradbury, A. J. The lightning last Friday evening burned out the armature on the generator that furnishes power to run the electric cars, hence no cars Saturday. A new armature got here that night and the cars were running as usual on Sunday. Nine years ago the lightning burned out an armature at the power station. The cost of the new armature and the cost of electricity cost the N. & P. Street Railway some more than $300.

J. M. Hannaford will have an auction at the house in the Pines directly opposite the entrance to the Fair grounds, next Monday at 1:30 p. m., when he will sell a large lot of household furnishings and farming tools. Mr. Hannaford recently sold his farm, and has purchased a place at Mechanic Falls, where he will go to live in a few days. He is well and favorably known here and will be missed by a large circle of friends.

This is what a New Hampshire paper says of our former townsman that may interest Norway people: "Silas H. Burnham, president of the Nebraska Bankers' Association, was a speaker at the annual meeting of the Northern bankers association in Concord one day this past week, and told our New Hampshire bank men that however averse they might be to the idea (and he himself is a staunch Republican) they are likely to have William J. Bryan as the next president of the United States, he being practically sure of the nomination and not at all unlikely to be elected." Mr. Burnham is personally acquainted with Bryan, and he says as a private citizen a better man never lived.

Quincy Adams Sawyer Plays to a Crowded House.

The great New England play Quincy Adams Sawyer played at the opera house Thursday evening to a full house. The crowd was the largest that has at present, about fifty going from some time.

The first scene was the interior of Benoni Hill's grocery store and village post-office at Mason's Corners. Then the cross roads between Eastborough and Mason's corners. Scene three, Mrs. Putnam's sitting room at Putnam Farm. Scene four, was the Pettengill farm yard, showing an old fashioned husking bee and the closing scene is the interior and exterior of Pettengill homestead during a good old New England snow storm.

The cast is made up as follows: Quincy Adams Sawyer, a new arrival from the city at Mason's corners. The village gossips wondered who he was, what he was, what he came for and how long he intended to stay. Zekki Pettengill who thinks no man can be happy when others are miserable around him, "less he's an almighty selfish critter," Obidiah Strout, the aforesaid almighty selfish critter. Arthur Hastings, a strong character of emotions. Hiram Maxwell, whose sole ambition is to get Mandy Skinner and three square meals a day. Deacon Mason, who thinks, "Blessed are the peace makers." Abner Stiles, who has large business interests, at the time of the accident. It was some time before they could be located by telephone and acquainted with the sad news.

Winslow Burbank Drowned.

While canoeing on Lake Auburn, Thursday afternoon, June 21, Winslow Burbank, aged 16, a freshman at Bates college and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burbank of South Paris, and Lulu Libby, aged 17, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Libby of Auburn, employed as a waitress at the Central Dining Rooms, were drowned.

There were two others in the canoe, Al. M. Adams, aged 21, also a freshman at Bates, of Millinocket, and Hattie Webb, aged 19, of Allen Court, Lewiston.

Burbank's skull-cap blew off and Miss Libby in reaching for it, overturned the canoe. Burbank, who was a good swimmer, attempted to rescue her, but she got her arms about his neck and the two sank.

Adams saved Miss Webb just as she was sinking for the third time.

There was no fault with the canoe. It is probable if the girl had reached out as she did in a boat it would have been tipped over. Burbank was paddling while the two young women were reclining against the back rests and pillows while Adams was in the bow.

Burbank was an only child. The father, who is a prominent contractor, was, with his wife, in Gorham, N. H., where he has large business interests, at the time of the accident. It was some time before they could be located by telephone and acquainted with the sad news.

Maine Clubs Everywhere.

It is a good sign that the sons and daughters of Maine who have gone into other states retain their love for their home state and are pleased to speak a good word for it whenever there is an opportunity. State of Maine clubs are continually being formed in the different states. Perhaps the farthest away is that in Los Angeles, Cal.

No Maine club is ever at a loss for a prominent speaker at any of its functions. There is always to be found a distinguished son of Maine in any state or part of the country and a list of the prominent Maine men now living in other states, men who have become leaders in business, professions and in public life, is surprising for its length and prominence.

It is good to see this love for one's native state, for it denotes certain strength of character with which love of home is closely allied. It is good to inculcate a spirit of loyalty as the Maine clubs are doing, and more than this the Maine clubs are good substitutes for what every true daughter of the State generally longs for, a sight of home.

It has been said that the people of New England are cold and distant; that they prefer to be by themselves and not to intermingle with people in other parts of the country, but this is hardly the case. They have a natural reserve in manner, but the love of their native state and its people is strong, and one has but to witness a gathering of a Maine Club to dispel the illusion that Maine people are cold and distant. When two people meet in another state and discover that each came from Maine there is immediately a bond of feeling and friendship between them which makes them friends always. Maine people who do not particularly notice each other in the old home state see in each other traits and tastes in common in other states.

A Rose Jar That Will Last for Years.

Gather the rose petals in the morning, let them stand in a cool place for one hour to dry. Toss them lightly, and put them in a large covered dish in layers, sprinkle each layer freely with salt. Add to this several mornings until you have enough stock. Shake up, or stir, every morning and let the whole stand 10 days after the last petals are added. Transfer to a glass fruit jar, in the bottom of which you have placed two ounces of whole allspice, crushed; two ounces stick cinnamon, broken coarsely. Let stand six weeks, closely covered, when it is ready for the permanent jar. Add now one ounceorris root, bruised and shredded, two ounces lavender flowers and a small quantity of any other sweet scented, dried leaves. Mix all together and put in the rose jar in alternate layers, with the rose stock and a few drops of oil of rose and pour over the whole a quart of a pint of good cologne. This will last for years, though from time to time you may add a little lavender or orange flower water, or any nice perfume and some seasons a few fresh rose petals.

Evelina Linnell has been spending her vacation at her home in Oisfield. Principal and Mrs. E. H. Pratt and two sons are at their summer home at Fishon's Point.

Mrs. Martha Chute (Greenleaf) Hill of North Bridgton quietly passed away Wednesday, June 13, at 12.30 p. m., the immediate cause of her death being a paralytic shock. She was born in Oisfield June 10, 1821, and had just passed her 85th birthday anniversary. Sept. 29, 1842, at the age of 21 she was united in marriage with John Hill of North Bridgton. The young couple went at once to North Bridgton where they made their home. Mr. Hill died Oct. 12, 1892. Nine children blessed their union.

The fine set of farm buildings at South Poland, built by the late N. I. Pope were struck by lightning and totally destroyed by fire, Friday night, June 22. The buildings consisted of a two story house and two barns. The loss was $10,000. It was not learned whether or they were insured. The house was occupied by Will Quinoy and wife, caretakers.

The Ringling Brothers have bought the Forepaugh-Sells shows of the heirs of the late James A. Bailey.

The Grange and the Farmer.

Every man is a factor of society, and as such he is accountable for the manner in which he performs the duties which devolve upon him, writes National Grange Master N. J. Bacheider in an exchange.

The first is to his home and family. The second is to his government, that permits him to enjoy the blessings and happiness of his home and family. The third is to better the conditions and advance the interest of his chosen occupation.

Since we are looking at the farmer's side of the question, what should be his action and what can he do to better his condition?

There are certain conditions existing that must be met and overcome to obtain results desired by the farmer. What legislation is needed must be secured by his combined efforts. As an individual among seventy millions of people he is infinitesimally small, and as an individual he is hopelessly helpless to do one thing to obtain relief. The moment the farmer attempts to relieve any burden created by unjust taxation or unequal distribution of it, it makes no difference in what direction, he is met by an organized force. No argument is needed at this time to convince any intelligent farmer that such is the case.

It is not enough that he complains and wants something done, he is morally bound to do something himself and not merely wish it done.

He has power and it is his duty to use that power so as to make it available and his influence felt. So that if he cannot make his influence felt or his power available as an individual (and I say he cannot), his duty is to make it so, and that can only be done through his organized efforts.

Every farmer owes it to society to assist in securing honest legislation and just representation. That a lethargy exists among farmers in regard to political duties is evident from the class of legislators that represent them, composed as it is almost wholly of men from other professions and possessing but little interest in the affairs of the farmer.

The farmer has submitted so long to the powers that be that in many places he has lost confidence in his ability to do anything, and above all, he has lost the stimulating influence of a farm organization to awaken his energies and give him courage. To do the work assigned to him as a citizen he needs an understanding of the questions of the day; he needs a preparation that will enable him to act in the management of the affairs of his time. In short, he must be able to stand up and defend his interests whenever it is required, and the ability to think quickly and act courageously only comes from a drill obtained in organization, and a farm organization teaches him to have confidence in his fellow farmers and acquaint him with the vital questions affecting his interests.

The farmer was created a social being and needs the wholesome influence of organization to keep him so. His business is comparatively one of isolation, varying in degree according to his environment. The farmer who lives within the boundaries of 100 acres becomes very narrow and of little use to his community. His family is correspondingly dwarfed as they are shut out of society and are improved as their opportunity for association increases. The individual excluded from society will in time lose his mental powers and become oblivious to his own needs as well as to the needs of others. Here again he needs a farm organization where he with his family can meet with freedom and ease and while cultivating sociability can secure mental culture and pleasing manners—something that too many farmers' homes have neglected.

Without further arguments, all agree that the farmer needs to organize, and without any hesitation we say the Grange is the best organization. Its declaration of purposes is as fine a document as we have ever seen written by man. Its application to farm life, and fine sentiment contained, cannot be surpassed. With its 32 years of existence, in which time it has met the surveillance of every opposition, it has not been found wanting in any particular. It has stood the test, while many other organizations which have sought to improve upon it have met with disaster and ruin.

The plan of the Grange is right in being made co-existent with the needs of the farmer, having an organization in the township, county, State and nation, whereby it is able to serve him in every sphere. Anything short of this is deficient.

The Grange may be called the liberator of the American farmer's wife, as it was the first organization that gave to women the same privileges and rights as are enjoyed by man. In doing this it has not only turned on the radiant light of hope for her, but it has strengthened the union of both, has created deeper love for home, and given inspiration for better thoughts, nobler deeds and higher hopes for the future. Men need more of the refining influence of woman. There is nothing that so refines a man as a good woman, and no audience, association, or organization with woman eliminated can be so modest, so refined, or so complete as with woman in it.

There is nothing equal to the Grange in giving opportunity to the boys and girls on the farm. Here the latent ability of the boy is awakened and hope engendered until we see him developed into a fuller and more complete man. In so doing, he takes greater pride in his work, more interest in the farm, and many times, more interest in the community, and her genius brightens, while her refined nature responds readily with graceful manners and greater affection for all that is near and dear to her.

The impress of the Grange on its members has a great influence for good. It makes better men and better women, and incites all to a higher plane of life.

What Grange Stands For.

The Grange is one of the great organizations of the country. It is composed almost entirely of farmers, and the farmers form the class upon whom more than any other the welfare of the nation depends.

When the farmer is prosperous all the country is well to do, and if the farmer is embarrassed by lack of good crops or for any other reason the effect of this goes out to every other class and to every remotest corner of the earth.

One of the prime objects of the Grange is to bring such a condition of affairs that the farmer—and consequently everybody—may be in a state of prosperity. The steps leading toward this are manifold. One of them is education—the education of both the head and hand. More and more the old and erroneous idea disappeared that anybody can be a farmer. The successful farmer of to-day is a scientific man, an aggressive man, a reading man, and an up-to-date man. And the Grange is one of the factors and the instruments through which this state of affairs has come about.

The Grange is progressive, wide awake and alert. It is the central organization which is building up and aiding the farmers as a class and materially adding to the prosperity of the country. It devotes itself not alone to the farming interests, but it has its eye on legislation and is doing good work in many other ways.

How many noble aspirations have been kindled, how many thoughts have been directed into higher channels, how many patriotic impulses have been stirred, how much of self-sacrificing labor has been done by the ranks of unselfish men and women of the Grange.

The Local Newspaper.

It is to the interest of every town to support a good newspaper, says the Atlanta Constitution, not through local pride alone, but for practical business reasons. A newspaper is constantly doing ten times as much for its own town as it could ever hope to get pay for—more than it could charge for, if it would.

The more prosperous a newspaper is the more it is liable to do. Such a good weekly paper, full of live local ads, with the general circulation throughout the county, and we will show you an up-to-date, prosperous, progressive community.

Show us a community that persistently proceeds on the idea that the editor of the home paper can live on the "piper" that accumulates in the office, who prints and distributes the paper, and we will show you a community that is a waste of public money to destroy him. It is a waste of public money to occasionally at living prices, those citizens have come to regard it as one of their inalienable rights to work him for long-winded obituary notices and in "memorials" with three inches of hymn book poetry at the end, to say nothing about an occasional notice of lost cow or some cottonseed sale, and we will show you a community that is living from hand to mouth, and is always on the ragged edge of adversity. People ought to stop to think about these things. It is an important matter. It is their own good that is involved, the welfare and progress of their community therefore of themselves.

A local newspaper is absolutely necessary to any community. No merchant, no grand jury, no town council that spends every year all it can afford with the home paper, whether the expenditure is absolutely necessary or not, makes a wise and profitable investment. They are not "giving" the home paper something. On the contrary, it is earning every cent it gets and more, providing it is a paper worth picking up in the road.

And if it isn't that sort of a paper it is usually the fault of the town in which it is published.

June Superstitions.

"Good Luck," is the shrine whereat every bride stakes her future weal; and the superstition that touches every one of us at some time in our lives, be it ever so lightly, is very close to the heart of the girl at this time.

"Among the customs most generally followed is, that the bride on her return home from church is often at once robbed of all the pins about her dress by her single friends around her, from the belief that whoever possesses one of them will be married in the course of a year.

"In the northern countries a bride is expressly warned, 'be sure when you go to get married that you don't go in at one door and out at another, or you will be always unlucky.'

"An instance of a similar piece of folk-lore is recorded by the late Cuthbert Bede in 'Notes and Queries,' as having occurred at a wedding that took place in a Worcestershire village in October, 1877.

"He thus writes: 'The bride and bridegroom at the conclusion of the ceremony left the church by the chancel door, instead of following the usual custom of walking down the aisle and through the nave door. One of the oldest inhabitants, in mentioning this to me, said that it betokened bad luck, and that she had never known a like instance but once in her life, when the married couple went out of the church by the chancel door, and the bride was a widow before twelve months were out.'

"There is, too, a widespread notion that when the bride retires her bridesmaids should lay by stacking away across the bed, as this act is supposed to guarantee future prosperity in the marriage state.

"Again, much importance was formerly attached to the colors which the bride wore on her wedding day. In an old book entitled, 'The Fifteen Comforts of Marriage' a bride and her bridesmaids are represented conversing together respecting the colors to be used on the bridal dress. It was finally decided, after various colors had been rejected, to mingle a gold tissue with grass green, this combination being considered symbolical of youth and joy.

"Something blue," explains itself, for blue is the color of faith and honor, truth and fidelity—qualities precious to lovers and doubly important to married lovers!

"Blest is the bride on whom the sun doth shine is very old and familiar saying, said to be exactly true, but it is not so commonly known that the day after the wedding is a sure indication of the sort of life to which the groom can look forward as his own portion, and domestic bliss, sunny ease or storm, and the writer has personally made notes of this saying, and it has, in the six cases noticed, proved true! Sometimes the wedding day was bright and fair, while the day after dawned cloudy and morose; this bride invariably enjoyed life while her husband was most unhappy or at least seemed to be so; then the opposite has been found as true. The throwing of an old shoe after the bride signifies that her parents have given up all control over her, that henceforth she belongs wholly to her husband.

"As to the days of the week on which one should marry, and the months of the year which are propitious for this event, the writer can only pass on the rhymes over which the engaged maiden would do well to ponder long and carefully, before she decides.

Monday for health,
Tuesday for wealth,
Wednesday the best day of all;
Thursday for losses,
Friday for vexes,
Saturday no luck at all.

"Just fancy the state of the maiden who happens to select Saturday for convenience sake, in ignorance of this rhyme!

"For the groom:—Don't dare to pick up your wife's handkerchief on her wedding day, should she accidentally drop it, for it is a sure sign that whoever picks up the bride's handkerchief, will be forever after called upon to do little thankless tasks of all sorts that are never appreciated at their true worth. Let some disinterested person perform this service on this particular day; you'll have all the opportunity you wish to wait upon the lady in the years to come."

Ottawa House, Cushing's Island. This favorite resort which is so well known by the tourist and those spending the summer on the Maine coast has been remodelled, refurnished, new plumbing and bathrooms installed, and put in first class order, and will be open for the reception of guests this year on June 27th.

Inasmuch as this popular house has been closed for the past two years, patrons will be glad to learn of its reopening under good management.

A feature which will appeal to guests this year is the fresh water supply that has been secured by the boring of an artesian well, 275 feet deep, and which gives an unlimited flow of fresh water.

Cushing's Island in Portland Harbor, Me., is easy of access by Grand Trunk Railway System and the magnificent surroundings that are found in Casco Bay are but one of the many attractions that are offered this year.

Beware of Chicago. To read the newspaper accounts of the great packing houses in Chicago, regarding their methods of putting up canned goods, one gets the idea that if he should be walking along in some of their buildings and step on a grease spot and fall into their vats he would in a short space of time be converted into corned beef. There isn't any doubt that a good deal of the material used by these concerns is not fit to eat, but some of the stuff told of them is too absurd to be thought of by a sane person.

For Brown Tail Moth Itch. A mixture of one pint of ammonia and one-half pint of rain water is said to be a successful remedy for the cure of the brown-tail moth itch.

The story is going the rounds about a man who was seized with sharp, stinging pains in the center of his anatomy and fearing appendicitis, rushed home and prepared to be good and sick. He started his wife hustling for hot water and bandages and got busy himself preparing for bed. No sooner had he removed his clothing than a large hornet dropped from his clothing to the floor and instantly those "stinging" pains ceased.

Just because these are the shortest nights in the year a man need not think he has a right to stay out any later.

Mary E. Buzzell, her sister's home in Norway, Mass., June 21, aged 88 years, and was brought here for burial, Saturday morning, June 23. She had been a teacher for many years, first in the village academy, later in the high school at Stoneham, Mass., where she taught French and English for a number of years. She studied abroad for a season the French and German languages. She was a lady of high intellectual attainments and of an unusually beautiful character, kind, lovable and thoroughly good.

There was a widowed mother, Mrs. R. J. Buzzell, a brother, E. C. Buzzell of Fryeburg Center, and two sisters, Mrs. Esther Sweetser, of Neponset, Mass., and Mrs. Susan Frazer of this place.
The following lines written by Miss Buzzell shortly before her death and read at her funeral by Rev. B. N. Stone, express her sentiments and depth of her character.

To Thee my Lord I look,
My times are in thy hand;
Thou knowest the book
I cannot understand.
Not knowing what to do,
I trust to Thee, my God,
To open the door anew.
With faith for ever new,
I trust to Thee, my God,
And ask that Thou wilt lead
My steps from day to day.

How About the Doughnuts?

A good deal of live stock is changing owners just now and meat men are plenty and no one seems greatly disturbed by the commotion among the millions of meat packers.
